Universidad Autónoma Metropolitana,

Instituto Politécnico Nacional, (

Puebla

Universidad Autonoma de Puebla,

Universidad Popular Autónoma del Estado de Puebla)

Monterrey

Universidad Autónoma de Nuevo León,

Tecnológico de Monterrey).

Financiatiion: I Campus-France, French Embassy, Conacyt (Mexico), and the universities

Group: The group was constituted by 12 universities including, Aix-en-Marseille, Lille, Paris 8, Perpignan, Toulouse

Lille-Representatives: The Lille group was constituted by Philippe Cordonnier (Lille2), Marie Gompel (Lille2), Prof. Serge Dauchy (Lille2) Bernard Sablonnier (Lille2), Shahid Rahman (Lille3)

Lille 3: Development of the Activities, Outcomes and Prospectives

In relation to the trip and the organization of the group of Lille it was superbly organized by Philippe Cordonnier and Marie Gompel.

In fact the thanks to them and to all of the members of the group, Lille has been very present in Mexico and it really captured the attention of many students that manifested a genuine interest and enthusiasm for coming to Lille and pursue their doctorate studies here in subjects such as Law, Nanotechnology, Biology, Business, Economy, Medicine

In relation to Lille 3, we managed to capture the attention to candidates that manifested interest in Arts (Cinema)

Economy

Education

History

Musicology

Philosophy (of Education, of Politics)

Philosophy and Literature

Philosophy and Arts

In fact the Universidad Autonoma de Mexico, the most important university in Mexico, took the choice of my own talk proposal on Normativity and Logic, in the Context of Legal Reasoning. As a result of the talk, the UNAM is now engaged in organizing a frame for cooperation between the departments of philosophy notably in the area of logic and philosophy of science.

I have been invited to come back, probably at the end of the year, for a short professor-ship and to discuss the terms of a long-lasting collaboration

For short, the Visit has been very successful mainly because of the excellent working frame and the atmosphere of academic and personal collaboration provided by the organizers and the involvement and contact with researchers of several disciplines coming from different French Universities.

I am pretty confident that this action will trigger fruitful results.

Moreover, I think that the presence of Lille3 if it steadily continues to be involved and engaged in such kind of actions, will motivate to increase the interest in fostering in a more substantial form the doctorate studies in the Humanities and Social Sciences in our university, that for the moment, at least from the "official" point of view, are not in the top list of the financing priorities of the foster-institution.

Let me add that in fact it is this kind of actions that will work in benefit for the internationalization of the research in Lille3.

Finally, I would like to stress the very good organization and the atmosphere of academic and personal friendship deployed by all of the organizers involved.
